

Now Listen, McGill!

I have told you about those $40 Suits! Now telling you again. It's the biggest $40 worth you've ever bought! They are Suits priced $55 to $80. There are Blue Serges, single and double-breasted—fine stripes—herringbones—everything a man who knows style wants to wear. If you don't come—you're the loser, because they are going fast. Show the governor what a keen sense of value you have—wear one home on the holidays!

Boy, those Neckties at $1.45 are bargains! Go to it! Buy one for yourself—for your friends—they're worth double the price!

Do me a favor—come on down and look—if you don't buy—that's all right. But come and see them!

BLUE BIRD CAFE SCENE OF BANQUET

Meds. Banish Sorrows At Fresh-Soph. Banquet.

HILARIOUS EVENING.

Most Successful Dinner in History of Medical Faculty.

Last evening the members of Medicine '26 entertained the two Sophomore years to what was unanimously declared to be the best, noisiest and most "Med-like" banquet in the history of the Faculty of Medicine. At about seven-thirty p.m. the men sat down to a sumptuous dinner prepared by the management of the Blue Bird Cafe. A most efficient orchestra was in attendance, and all its numbers were greeted with the heartiest of applause. In addition to this, the entertainment was of the usual high standard set by the Blue Bird Cafe, and this in its turn was received with the greatest hilarity by those present.

Sir Arthur Currie was unable to be present, but members of the Faculty, who were the guests of the First Year men, were: Dr. Scane, Prof. Harvey Jelly, Prof. Tait, Dr. Thomson, Dr. Campbell, Dr. Notkin, Mr. Hatcher, Mr. A. G. Hill, president of the First Year, presided, and at his table were Messrs. Tidmarsh and Harris, presidents of the two Second Years.

After the drinking of the toast to the King, amidst the playing by the orchestra of the National Anthem, A. G. Hill proposed the toast to Our Alma Mater. He dwelt upon the glorious traditions of Old McGill, and of the equally glorious future before our college under the guidance of our new Principal, Sir Arthur Currie.

Professor Harvey Jelly replied, emphasizing the fact that the present proud position which our Alma Mater holds in the minds of Canadians will be maintained at all costs. McGill numbers among her graduates many men of note, and we have around our campus a splendid college spirit. Prof. Jelly concluded his address by the simple statement, "McGill forever."

The toastmaster now rose to propose the toast to what he termed THE Faculty—there are many faculties, but, at least in the opinion of those present, Medicine constitutes the one outstanding branch of learning at our University.

Professor Scane, in reply, said that, although he had attended many banquets, this year's Freshman-Sophomore celebration "copped the climax." Also, he added, that never had he heard "so much noise from ginger ale." The speaker thought that he was not only expected to speak for the Faculty, but to drink for them, and that he was doing his best to perform both functions.

Medicine, he affirmed, was the Faculty which had sounded McGill's name broadcast. He had no doubt but that the present Med. students would do their bit to further this noble reputation of their Alma Mater.

Professor Scane's speech was loved by a very hearty, if slightly boisterous, rendering of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

ARTS COURSE MAY BE LONGER

Subject Discussed at Meeting of Corporation on Wednesday.

At a meeting of the Corporation, held last Wednesday, one of the most important matters of discussion was the lengthening of the session of the Arts course. It has been the opinion of the different faculties for some time past that it would be advantageous to both students and professors if a convocation of all faculties could be held at the beginning of June. At the present time the convocation of Arts, Science and Law is held in May and that of Medicine in the early part of June. The Faculty of Arts reported Wednesday that it was ready to make the change, which would make the convocation of Arts fall on the same date as that of Medicine.

It was finally decided to form a committee to approach the other faculties on the subject, since lengthening the Arts term would involve changes in a number of combined courses, affecting the work of other

MECHANICAL CLUB HELD MEETING WED.

Two Papers on Pulp and Paper Industry Read.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Second Meeting of Season Drew Large Attendance.

The second meeting of the Mechanical Club was held on Wednesday evening, December 8, in Room 53, in the Engineering Building, at 8.15. About 35 members were present, and considerable enthusiasm was in evidence. President J. G. Hall occupied the chair.

The first paper was read by J. O'Halloran, Sci. '21, and dealt with Pulp and Paper Manufacturing in the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Co.'s plant. Special attention was given to the problems that must be solved in handling the tremendous quantities of wood which are used, by means of conveyors and elevators. It was with these problems that the speaker was connected during the past summer vacation, and his presentation of the subject showed a thorough knowledge which only practical experience can produce.

He also described the mechanical and chemical processes of pulp making, both of which are used in the plant; and also the methods and machines for making this pulp into paper, principally news-print. The output of the plant is 250 tons per day, and when the new machinery now being installed is in operation, the output will be 500 tons per day—the largest in Canada. The paper was illustrated by an excellent set of photographs and slides, and showed the result of careful preparation.

A short business discussion followed, during which an announcement was made regarding the next trip, and plans for a dinner to be held after the Christmas vacation were also discussed.

After a brief intermission, the second paper was given by D. H. MacFarlane, Sci. '21, on Mechanical Pulp Manufacturing, the detailed description of which both interested and instructed a very appreciative audience. He explained the efforts which the Brompton Pulp and Paper Co. are making to keep the quality of the pulp product as uniform as possible and to cut down the losses which accrue during the progress of manufacture. These things presented many perplexing problems, the solution of which called for a high degree of technical skill and ingenuity. The paper was also fully illustrated with slides.

That these papers were of supreme interest to the club was borne out by the discussion which followed, during which the speakers were called upon to answer many questions and explain uncertain points.

Prof. C. M. McKergow, the Hon. President, then made a few remarks by way of helpful criticism, which added greatly to the instructive value of hearing the papers, especially to the members of the junior years.

Prof. A. R. Roberts also spoke briefly, and emphasized the field for further investigation and possible improvement in the things upon which Mr. MacFarlane's paper dwelt.

After a well deserved vote of thanks to the speakers, the meeting adjourned to Room 35, where considerations of a higher vein were taken up, or rather put down, viz., refreshments, ice-cream and cake. Of the success of the meeting there was no question.

OLD SCOUTS CLUB HOLD BIG SMOKER

Annual Smoker Proved Great Success.

SIR ARTHUR PRESENT.

George Williams, Conjurer, and B. W. and F. Exhibitions Well Received.

Last night the Old Scouts' Club held a smoker, of which they may well be proud.

It was the occasion of the first anniversary of the founding of the club, and it surpassed in every way the optimistic hopes that had been held in regard to the entertainment.

The club was singularly honored by the presence of Sir Arthur Currie, whose appearance at 8.20 was the signal for all present, who numbered between 50 and 60, to rise to their feet, while the orchestra played "O Canada."

After this, the president of the club, Amaron, of Second Year Arts, in a brief speech, welcomed all members, Old Scouts and guests, and spoke of the bright future in store for the club.

The hon. president, Prof. Evans, then rose, and amongst other remarks, disclosed the sad story of how the encumbrance of a wife and family curtailed his pleasurable evenings with the Old Scouts, but that he had managed to evade all family ties for the evening and was looking forward to an evening of real pleasure.

The entertainment provided then commenced, in the form of Mr. Geo. Williams. Whoever was responsible for the discovery of this genius deserves an illuminated address, or gold medal, or something to reward him for his success. It is not too much to say that the conjuring of Mr. Williams was far superior to anything that we have seen on the stage.

Some of the students who served overseas must surely have visited Maskelyne and Devants, the well-known conjuring and mystery experts. It is conferring the highest praise on Mr. Williams to say that his performance was in every way the equal to that of Maskelyne and Devants.

All the more meritable was it, since the conjuror was surrounded on three sides by students who kept very close tab on his movements, and yet he was never once detected in the manner of performing a trick.

Out of a variety of tricks, all of the very highest quality, it would be invidious to single out any special trick, but it must be sufficient to congratulate him very heartily on his performance.

Sir Arthur Currie then rose amidst cheers, and said that although he was not an Old Scout, he had a very great admiration for Scouts and the Scout movement, and that in his opinion McGill would be even better than it is if all students had at one time or another been Scouts.

He then dealt with the question of the scholastic attainments reached by men who turned out regularly for football and other sports.

He pointed out that a very large

"YOU'RE WELCOME AT HALL TO-DAY"

Hope to Surpass Last Week's Successful Programme for "Out-of-Towners."

For the past few weeks many of the out-of-town students have been enjoying a happy week-end by means of the programme offered by the Hospitality Committee. The aim of this branch of the McGill "Y's" activities have been outlined before, but, in brief, the fundamentals are to get the boarding house students acquainted and to make them feel at home in our city. Members of the Committee are on hand from 5 to 6 every Friday and Saturday, and will be glad to meet any whose homes are not in Montreal. Last Sunday some visitors enjoyed the entertainment which was scheduled on their behalf, but this week we are counting on many more to take advantage of our plan.

Everybody remember the time—5 p.m. to-day at the Hall; "The more the merrier."

AN UNDERGRADUATE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

A problem which is of no little practical importance to the average student, who is obliged at more or less frequent intervals to make a studied examination as to the possibilities of his financial resources, is that of obtaining vocational employment.

Sessional months slip by and in an incredibly short space of time the examination-weary undergraduate is confronted with the pressing problem of obtaining the temporary employment which will bring him the necessary funds with which to resume his studies next session.

It is often—in fact as a rule—a difficult matter for the average man to sell his services for the four or five vacation months of the year. The difficulty lies not in the lack of employment but rather in the absence of any systematic means of bringing employers into touch with would-be student employees. Obviously what is needed is an organization of some kind representing the Undergraduate body—a Labor Bureau connected with the University and so advertised as to become the recognized medium between employers seeking college men and the students.

Something of this nature was within the last year or two inaugurated in connection with the Graduate Society for the benefit of its members.

Such a bureau would entail very little expense and might conceivably be carried on as a department of the University Offices. Once established—the accomplishment of which would naturally require something in the way of initial advertisement—such an employment Bureau might quite readily be made self-supporting and almost automatic in its operation. It would eventually assume what would virtually be the character of a clearing house for the distribution of available unemployed Undergraduates.

That such an innovation would receive the enthusiastic approbation of the Student body is beyond question. It would satisfy a very vital need and would materially assist the impecunious student in his endeavors to surmount what are very often formidable barriers along the road of learning.

ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETY MET WEDNESDAY

Last Meeting Before Holidays Was Well Attended.

INTERESTING TALKS.

Mr. Durnford Spoke on Tour of England and France.

On Wednesday evening the last meeting before the Christmas holidays was held by the Architectural Society. The meeting was largely attended, probably because of the added interest of hearing addresses from one of our fellow students and a graduate of last year.

Mr. Durnford spoke on the tour which he and several others made last summer of England and France.

Harold McEvers, B.Arch., followed Mr. Durnford with a very enthusiastic and enlightening address on the research work he has been doing this fall among old French-Canadian buildings.

Mr. Durnford, after giving the general route of the tour—Montreal, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Melrose, Durham, York, London, Havre, Mont St. Michele, Southampton, Salisbury, London, Oxford, Wells, Liverpool, Montreal—and recounting many of the amusing incidents which occurred to them on the way, illustrated their travels with lantern slides and many of his own sketches, many of which were made under adverse circumstances.

After dealing thus summarily with his trip and the work covered, Mr. Durnford took it upon himself as a Senior to give a great deal of advice to the junior year men as regards the means of making the trip, the material to take along, the method of working and laying out your route and means of gaining admission to all the buildings of importance. In England, a card of the R.B.A., and in France a card of the Beaux Arts will gain admittance to practically all buildings. Mr. Durnford also laid great stress on the value to the student of such a trip, and urged that all to whom it was at all possible to make it.

Mr. Durnford created a great impression, and a number of members have secured passages already.

The second speaker of the evening was Mr. McEvers, who is the first who has won the Scholarship of the P.Q.A.A. This scholarship is granted to the one who submits sketches of a sufficiently high standard. The winner is thus expected to go about the Province measuring and drawing and recovering as much as possible of what is just now being brought to light, namely Early French Architecture in the Province of Quebec.

As Mr. McEvers was practically the first to attack the field in this manner, he was at first a little belogged as to where to begin. He, however started in at Caughnawaga, spending several days there, and thence proceeded to Quebec, and from there along the North Shore of the St. Lawrence through St. Oiselle, St. Paul, Bale les Eboulements, Charlebourg, Beaufort, Isle of Orleans and, lastly, Three Rivers.

In working in the different places, Mr. McEvers succeeded in obtaining a great number of very interesting sketches of French-Canadian buildings, decorative forms, details and also from the priests and others gathered a wealth of historical and traditional information.

Mr. McEvers was working in this manner in the Province for six weeks, covering a great deal of ground on his bicycle. He should certainly be proud of the work which he accomplished in that short time. His address was so full of interesting data and enthusiasm that when he concluded by naively explaining his attempt to win the favor of the nuns in a seminary at Three Rivers, so that he might get within and examine the place (which attempt was unsuccessful), his hearers were filled with an enthusiasm for French-Canadian work, of whose existence they had hitherto been practically unaware.

Mr. McEvers' address should impress those who are unable to make a trip to the Continent with the fact that there is no lack of material for sketching and measuring right here within our own province.

The meeting was an entire success and very suitable, and, as usual with refreshments.

The next meeting of the society will be held on January 12, when Mr. Hyde will speak on "Clients and Contractors."

HOPE

"HOPE springs eternal in the Human Breast," says the adage --- No matter how dark the sky, the Man who is A Man, forever hopes for brighter days.

TO-DAY that which men have hoped for since the Days of War seems to have come to pass. In that living Costs appear to be diminishing.

As a matter of fact, though the price movement is downward, it is a good time for men to beware of sharpsters. In a changing market, the honest merchant is adjusting his prices in conformation to future purchase prices. The other chap is taking advantage of public psychology and is wolfing at the public expense.

IN this we have our moral. Through all the days of frenzy we have maintained an even keel as to price adjustment, based on conservative buying and a low-rent policy. We are still in the field on this platform --- and still offer a straight TEN PER CENT DISCOUNT to you McGill men based on our large volume of College-man business.

CHESS LEAGUE IN OPERATION

McGill vs. Westmount Next Monday.

The City Chess League commenced its season Wednesday night, when the McGill team met the champions of last season, the Nationals, at their club house on Cherrier Street.

Although the McGill team were playing for the first time in a match, they showed their ability by winning four of the six games played.

This victory augurs well for the future success of the team, and if they continue to exhibit the same form another championship will undoubtedly be added to McGill's collection.

The teams and score were as follows:

McGill	Nationals
1. Duberger	1. LeBlanc
2. Emer	2. Lamotte, capt.
3. Rothschild	3. Bourdon
4. Johnson	4. Brien
5. Jordan, capt.	5. Ottina
6. Crestohl	6. Rocheleau

The next match will be on Monday evening, in the Union, when the hold themselves in readiness to play

LAST CALL FOR ENG. RUGBY DINNER

List Closes To-Night To All Desiring To Take Part.

To-day affords the last opportunity for all those who intend going to the English Rugby Dinner, to be held next Monday evening. This social gathering for all those interested in the sport is to be of an unique kind, and a pleasing programme is being prepared by the executive. The dinner will be held in the Union—sharp at seven o'clock. The price of tickets is set at $2. If all who would like to be included will please send in their names to any of the following they will greatly oblige:— J. F. McIntosh, Med. '22, Up. 1086. Lochead, Arts '23, Up. 9130. F. C. Westmount Chess Club will play McGill.

All the members of the club and others interested in Chess are invited to attend.

The members who played against Nationals and in addition Messrs. Hunter and Cartwright, will please

Scissored Sentiment

A novel dance was held by two hundred and fifty couples at the University of Illinois, when the members probably had in mind some memories of "apple-blossom" times. The programmes that were distributed were of blue suede leather and shaped like miniature barns with gambrel roofs. The barn loft window showed the college initials on a silk insert of the college colors. The open doors had inscribed on them a list of the dances in the hall itself, hay, corn, straw and pumpkins under a low-lying moon certainly provided a rustic atmosphere. The orchestra seated itself about the manger.

Eight students were perched upon the highest limbs of the tallest trees, each singing a different tune. The bedlam continued for a few hours until it aroused a nearby resident who called the police. The report continues that it was not until the officers threatened to call the fire department and turn the hose on them that the neophytes left their perches.

A series of lectures are about to be given on Journalism at the University of Illinois. The purpose of the lectures is to acquaint the students with the work of the classes in Journalism and to give the students an idea of what leaders in different fields think of the newspaper.

Mystery overhanging the arrival of a square, flat box at University Hall, Harvard University, yesterday.

The mail brought a strange looking box about fourteen inches square by four inches thick, addressed to "University Hall," no more, and with no return address. The Cambridge postmark graced the upper corner, but there was no identification of the sender. There was a Bolshevik twist to the handwriting.

Debate then ensued as to who should open the mysterious package. The manager of the University Hall volunteered. Soon the top layer of paper was off, and wires were noticed. All indications pointed to its being an infernal machine, when curiosity got the upper hand, and unwrapping ceremonies were continued. Carefully the last barrier was removed, and they found an electric clock.

Details of the bouts are as follows: Bernstein vs. Mireky.

A very good exhibition. Mireky was champion of his weight last year, and had an advantage of longer reach and more weight. His opponent, however, put up a very game fight, and deserves great credit for his plucky performance.

Reid vs. Cope. 140-lb. Class. Very fast bout, in which Reid was very active until his exertions began to tell on him, but he came up again with lots of pep at the beginning of each round. Cope is a man who will be very prominent when the eliminating competitions take place.

MED. SOCIETY HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT

Address Given by Prof. J. L. Todd.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Interesting Address on Subject of "Medical Research Commissions."

The Medical Undergraduate Society was addressed last night by Prof. J. L. Todd on the subject of "Medical Research Commissions." The speaker dealt principally with two particular expeditions in which he was engaged, one up the Congo River, and the other to Poland. In Africa, the chief disease which was being combatted was trypanosomiasis or sleeping sickness, and each step of the voyage up the Congo was pictured by lantern slides, which greatly helped each member of the audience to appreciate the importance of the expedition and the obstacles that were overcome. The equipment consisted of all kinds of rationals, including that variety which enabled the members of the Commission to cultivate very intimately the acquaintance and friendship of the different native chiefs. Experimental animals, chiefly cattle and monkeys, were taken along for the purposes of inoculation, and by these and other means the specific micro-organism causing trypanosomiasis was studied.

The second expedition of which Prof. Todd spoke was the "Typhus Research Commission to Poland," and all the principal work performed by its members was ably dealt with. Dr. Todd concluded his address with a few words of advice to the members present, saying that he hoped each student would do at least one little bit of research work after graduation, so that all might have the satisfaction of knowing that something, however small it be, was added to the world's knowledge by them.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered by Mr. Leary and seconded by Mr. Murray, after which refreshments were served.

RECITAL GIVEN BY FACULTY OF MUSIC

Well Chosen Programme Presented at R.V.C.

The McGill Orchestra gave Montreal music lovers a real treat in their presentation of an excellently planned and charmingly executed programme in the Royal Victoria College Hall last night. The hall, as is the usual case at a recital, was filled to its utmost capacity, proving how much appreciated these concerts are to all, and also demonstrates how great a need McGill has for a larger Convocation Hall.

The first item was "Symphony in F," taken from one of Dvorak's operas. This was the main orchestral number and was excellently rendered. The songs and pianoforte solos gave the decided variety to the evening's performance, the position of each keeping one's interest and attention always at a high pitch.

The following is the programme: Symphony in F (No. 3)

Op. 76 Dvorak

Songs—

Spray of Roses . . . Wilfrid Sanderson

May-Day at Islington

(Songs of Old London) . . Oliver

Miss Eleanor Cox.

Pianoforte Solo—

ORCHESTRA TO GIVE CONCERT

Good Programme Prepared For Sunday.

The preparations for the concert to be given by the Students' Orchestra next Sunday afternoon, the 12th, at 3 o'clock, are now complete, and all accounts go to show that it will be one of the most interesting ever given by this old established Society.

The only thing needed to ensure complete success is a large audience, and if last year's experience is any criterion, there need be no fears on that score. Admission will, as usual, be free, and the expenses of the concert will be met by a silver collection.

For the benefit of those who may be in some doubt as to the identity of the orchestra, it may be well to state that it is absolutely unconnected with the McGill University Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Perrin, which gave its first concert of the session in the R.V.C. yesterday evening. The Students' Orchestra has an entirely different object—that of assisting at the various College functions throughout the year: such as the Senior Play, and others of a similar nature. The usefulness of the orchestra was impaired to a great extent by the war, and the concerts of the last two years have been produced as a means of keeping the thing going, as well as providing material for future work.

This year it has been possible to use the Students' Orchestra in its proper sphere, at the reception given to Sir Arthur Currie. But we have still a long way to go before it can take its rightful place in the life of the College. The concert has been most carefully prepared and rehearsed, under the direction of Mr. J. J. Gagnier, and it can be taken as a measure of the capacity of the orchestra. The soloists are of high reputation, and a glance at the programme will be sufficient to show the quality of the music presented.

It should be unnecessary to remind students of McGill of the importance of an organization such as the orchestra. It is the only undergraduate musical society which aims at playing the real stuff, and, as a result, it is the only musical society which bears within itself the germ of life. It has made gigantic strides in the path of re-establishment since the war, and all it needs is some small encouragement from the community which it aims to serve.

McGill Men and Women

Every normal one of us just at this time of year is reacting to the call of the Christmas Spirit—the spirit which impels us to give tangible evidence of the good will we bear our friends. The MCGILL DAILY wishes, in this connection, to call your attention to an opportunity which you have at this time to show your good will toward men and firms who have shown their good will and friendship toward you by advertising in your paper.

Nearly every line of merchandise is represented among the advertisers in the "DAILY," and they all—we feel safe in saying—offer as good merchandise and values as are to be found in Montreal.

Therefore, when you are doing your Christmas shopping, remember those merchants who think enough of McGill and her students, to appeal directly to them through the medium of their own publication.

Correspondence

The "Daily" is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office — that they write upon ONE side of the paper ONLY. No communications will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,—
It is a cause of keen disappointment that an application to establish a students' monthly review should have been rejected by the Students' Council. In view of the fact that, not only one, but many of such journals are flourishing in the best universities of England and the United States, I am inclined to think that the reasons given by the council for its refusal are unsatisfactory. Let us consider them in turn.

It is certain that in the general fields of journalism the monthly reviews do not "interfere with the success" of the daily papers for the simple reason that they have different functions to perform. They exist for different reasons, they express different things in different ways; they are read by different people, or by those who wish to have different desires satisfied by different means. In civil life we do not expect our daily papers to satisfy all the needs of the reading public, and hence it is that there arise our weekly, monthly and quarterly reviews. (It should be noticed also in passing that these reviews at the present time are exerting an ever increasing influence, as opposed to the garbled daily press with which we are afflicted.) In the same way then in our student life it is ridiculous to hold that the "Daily" does, or possibly can, cover the entire journalistic field of the university. It performs one function, a large, important and necessary function, and it performs that function, in my opinion, extremely well; but it cannot expect to combine every form of journalistic endeavor. It cannot hope to satisfy all the needs of the student body in regard to literary self expression. It cannot in a word perform more than one function. It is not a fitting vehicle for the exchange of student opinion on the great political, social and literary questions of the day, and in no way is the "Daily" fulfilling this office. This failure is not due to the Editor-in-Chief, who realizes this deficiency in our college life and is trying to remedy it, but is due entirely to difficulties which extend beyond his control. A daily paper, because of its own function, cannot adequately perform that particular work to which the form of a monthly review is especially adapted.

The next objection is that the Students' Council considers such an expression of student opinion as dangerous. We have now to consider what is meant by the term dangerous and to what court we shall appeal for its definition. Perhaps no two people have exactly the same opinion of what ideas are dangerous and what are safe; but I know of no reason why the Students' Council should be considered as a competent authority to rule on such an issue. I see no reason why the opinion of any individual student should be adjudicated upon by any nine of his fellows. They are duly elected representatives, it is true, but the simple fact is that we did not elect them for that purpose. It is impossible for any one man to represent five hundred other men in all their desires and interests—physically impossible, and I know that when I cast my vote for our representative I am not willingly giving into his hands the power to regulate all the interests of my life—even down to the last extreme of sitting in judgment on my opinions. I am a member of the track club—the President of that club has a right to represent the interests of my legs—if they don't exercise often enough or fast enough it is his place to correct me, and I will recognize his authority; but I did not elect him to represent my thoughts nor indeed, to cast perhaps the deciding vote as to whether they are dangerous or not. The Students' Council, in a word, may be our governing body but they are not the keepers of our conscience.

But it is said there must be some control of such a publication. Admittedly, there must, and I for one am of the opinion that well-known professors in the university are sufficiently qualified to act in such a position. It was proposed, as I understand it, that all copy should be presented to this body for their criticism and censorship. It would be generally admitted that such men are reliable. The Students' Council apparently thinks otherwise for they have given their opinion that even such a safeguard is "dangerous." If the Council knows the name of the chairman of this proposed committee, then their remark in this connection can be regarded as nothing less than insolence.

The third reason given is that no publication should be produced unless sanctioned by the Students' Council. This obviously is no reason at all. It is simply stating a matter of fact and not giving us a reason for that fact.

The last reason given is that the executive staff should be more truly representative of the student body. Now representation in a political sense is an admirable thing, but there is danger of the idea being carried too far. It seems to be the opinion of the Students' Council that any magazine at the university should attempt to express opinions which are acceptable to the entire student body or at least to the large bulk of them. The work of an editorial staff, in such a case, becomes an arduous matter of collecting opinions, analyzing them, classifying, comparing and rejecting them until, under this process of scientific procedure they succeed in finding what might be called the Lowest Common Multiple of student opinion. Then, they think, would we have ideas that we could safely publish; then would we represent the real thought of the University; then would the publication be read with avidity by every student at McGill instead of the few who are interested in these topics. But imagine what interesting reading it would provide—only those things which every one knows, only those opinions which every one already holds. We must really reassure ourselves that it is a monthly review which is desired and not a first grade copy-book.

This I admit, Mr. Editor, is a case of reductio ad absurdum; but there is something further to be considered in the matter of being "representative." For instance, how are we to know whether a certain attitude is "representative" or not? Surely not by the number of people responsible for its production. It is physically impossible for a pen, in the concrete, to be held by more than one person, not, as in the abstract, by the whole student body. Any article that is written, then, or any opinion expressed must be the immediate product of only one hand or brain. And the same thing is also true of all the most successful weekly reviews, for the London Spectator, to take an example, is Mr. Strachey and Mr. Strachey is the Spectator. To say that the Spectator is therefore not representative is ridiculous. Yet as far as the producing of the paper goes it is representative of only one man. It is seen then that the composition of the editorial board has little to do with the question.

How then can the meaning of "representative" be determined? We believe that the only way is not by referring it to the number of its writers, but to the number of its readers. This it is, and this alone, which determines the "representativeness" of a paper, in whatever sense that word is used. It cannot be correctly judged by even the shrewdest of men, nor can it be determined a priori. The only way in which it can be correctly determined is by giving the paper a try to see if it works. If the proposed paper, or any other, is not representative of any considerable body of opinion it will go to the wall as all such papers do and should.

On the other hand, if its articles prove of interest and are well received then we may have a monthly of which the students are proud, fulfilling a definite function which conflicts with that of no other college organ. It would be a small matter to give this thing a trial. We cannot see that it runs counter in any way to the "Daily"; the editorial policy would be properly safeguarded by members of the faculty; and it would have to prove itself to be "representative" or otherwise. Many members of the staff and many students believe that there is room for a monthly review. Is it asking too much to give it a trial and see if it works? If it doesn't there is little harm done. If it does it might give us something worth while.

May I state in closing that I have no connection whatever with this proposed review and little or no knowledge of the editorial viewpoint which it desires to express. It would deal chiefly, I believe, with questions of the day and in that respect may be of value.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your patient space.

Yours sincerely,

JOHN C. FARTHING.

Arts '21.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Sir,—

I should like to draw the attention of the men and women of McGill to the concert which is being given by the McGill Students' Orchestra in the Union on Sunday afternoon next.

The Students' Orchestra was formed some years ago by a small band of enthusiasts, and during the period prior to the war attained to considerable importance in the student activities of the University. In the general disorganization brought about by the war, however, the orchestra, with many other societies, suffered an enforced suspension of activities, and it has been a matter of considerable difficulty to regain the ground lost during those five years—a difficulty that has not yet been entirely overcome.

Last year, after heroic efforts on the part of the members, a concert was given during the early part of March, with a success far in excess of that originally anticipated. But one concert during the session does not justify the existence of an organization the primary object of which is not concert work, but the provision of music at those College functions which are not complete without it.

The reason why concerts are given at all is purely a financial one; the Students' Orchestra is supported by the Council, and this support, though generous, is necessarily inadequate to meet the demands made upon it by the orchestra in its present struggling and comparatively inexperienced state. The only way in which to relieve the situation is by giving a series of concerts—which also serves to train the members for that work for which the organization was originally formed, and to which it is especially fitted.

The programme for Sunday's concert, published in yesterday's "Daily," has been carefully selected with a view to meeting all demands. The vocalists are all rising musicians, and Messrs. Presner and Clossey are still students of McGill. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. J. J. Gagnier, bandmaster of the Canadian Grenadier Guards, whose name is too well known to need comment.

In accordance with the old established custom, admittance will be free, and it is hoped to cover expenses by a silver collection.

Students of McGill should see to it that music have its rightful place in College life; it is a lasting shame and reproach that the University, with a student roll of over 2,000, cannot support, in addition to the McGill Orchestra, under the direction of the Conservatorium, a small, but competent, band of musicians capable of officiating at the numerous functions where music—of a decidedly inferior nature—is at present supplied by unofficial organizations.

Yours, etc.,

FRANCIS J. TOOLE,

MARITIMERS PLAN XMAS TRIP HOME

Still Hope for Reduced Rates—Arrangements To Be Made.

With only a few more days until the Christmas holiday period begins, it is natural that those students who hail from Eastern Canada should be much concerned about the trip to their homes. The executive of the Maritime Club, therefore, wish to explain that every possible consideration has been given to the matter. For the past week lists have been posted in the Union for those wishing reservations, and to judge from the numbers already signed up, it is expected that several cars will be necessary to accommodate the big crowd. Those who have not signed, and who purpose going home, are requested to sign list at once so that in the rush of the season's traffic no difficulty will be experienced in securing accommodation. Rates are posted for different points, also the price of berths over both railways.

Next Wednesday and Friday, at 1 p.m. and 5.30 p.m., officials from the C.P.R. and C.N.R. will be in the Union to dispose of tickets and berths. Students who intend to leave the latter part of the week are asked to be on hand on Wednesday, while those who purpose going on Monday or Tuesday may get their tickets on Friday.

In regard to the matter of reduced rates, nothing definite can be said at this stage. The matter has been taken up with the Railway Commission at Ottawa by Sir Arthur Currie, who has presented a very strong case on the students' behalf. Word from that body should be forthcoming in the course of a few days, as the Principal requested the Commission to give the matter their immediate consideration.

GOOD-WILL VALUE.

A Voice From the Past Expresses the Worth of Reputation.

While the staff in the R. J. Tooke stores were putting the finishing touches to the great Christmas display of men's wear, a customer within had given expression to a sentiment which explains the "good-will" value which has been characterized as "so much water" by men who do not understand the psychology of business.

"I've been away from Montreal for many years," said the gentleman, "but I always bought my shirts and underwear from Tooke's when I lived here."

"When I learned that you were selling clothes I knew they must be good clothes, or Tooke's wouldn't have them," he said, as he was measured for the finishing of a new winter overcoat marked down from $135 to $100.

"A good name is better than four columns of display," said the advertising man.—Advt.
